GDDC Presentation - Trends Impacting Economic Development: Dan McDonald, GDDC, 300 Main Street, Dubuque, reviewed trends impacting the economic development in the community. He noted that there is no one thing that an existing or new business needs or wants, but a common theme for all is needing people. He noted the #1 challenge facing Dubuque as well as many other communities in the nation is the availability of qualified people to meet employment demands and opportunities. Mr. McDonald reviewed Info Action, a snapshot of Dubuque's business community. He noted many of the positive attributes as well as workforce-related issues due to the aging of baby boomers and the recognized need for a workforce strategy. He explained workforce availability and solutions will define communities' abilities to grow their economies. He noted workforce issues are not just about having people available; it's having people educated in the right areas.

He explained Iowa's population gained only approximately 10,000 people in the last two years, but Dubuque was one of only four metro areas which grew. He noted more rural counties saw a decline in population. He clarified that GDCC knows where there are openings and needs for local employers, and the work of local educational institutions to address courses and training to meet those needs. He noted how land was used in the Tech Park and Dubuque Industrial Center West for new and existing businesses. He explained a wise, forward thinking policy towards land use is essential to growing a local economy.

Mr. McDonald reviewed the five-year economic trends for job growth in Dubuque County, noting job growth exceeded the projections in 2012 with 58,300 jobs. He noted the unemployment rate is projected to drop over the next five years, which can impact workforce availability.

Mr. McDonald explained gross metro product and the five-year projection for Dubuque County, noting in 2012, it was $4.8 billion. He then reviewed income growth percentage projections for 2012 through 2016, noting the impact of the aging workforce.
