Food Scrap Recycling Now Open to All Curbside Collection Customers

The Dubuque City Council recently approved the expansion of Dubuque's curbside collection of food scraps for composting program.

The expansion represents a value-added service as part of the City's existing curbside collection of yard debris. It allows City customers to include food scraps and compostable paper in their yard waste cans, bags, and carts. These additional materials will be processed for beneficial use as compost and at the same time also reduce greenhouse gas pollution. Under a contract with Full Circle Organics, LLC (FCO), the City will deliver its co-collected "organics" (grass, leaves, brush, food scraps, and compostable paper) to FCO's commercial composting facility near Farley.

City collection customers may now combine food scraps and compostable paper in with their grass clippings, leaves, and other yard debris in their current yard waste cans, carts, and paper bags. These containers include 65-gallon City yard waste tipper carts, customers' 35-gallon cans with annual yard debris decals, and customers' 35-gallon cans or paper yard waste bags with attached single-use yellow stickers. As a result, many City customers will be able to divert their food scraps from landfilling at little or no additional cost by adding these materials to their yard waste containers. Commercial and residential customers may also subscribe to food scrap collection carts (13, 48, or 64 gallons) for additional fees.

This program expansion is projected to result in the following benefits over the next year: 155 additional tons of food scraps composted, 1,500 new households and businesses participating through these program options, and net collection system savings of $33,000.

This expanded City service enables more Dubuquers to help our community achieve its sustainability goals. The increased diversion of these materials from landfill disposal also reduces polluting methane emissions, which are major greenhouse gases.

In addition to compostable paper bags, the program will also allow the use of certified bio-plastic compostable "kitchen catcher" bags to reduce the "yuck" factor of managing food scraps for weekly collection. These bags display the US Composting Council logo and are available at retail stores and online.

Dubuque adopted and implemented Iowa's first curbside food scrap collection program seven years ago. Within three years, collected tonnage reached the maximum capacity of two tons per week allowed

Acceptable Compostable Materials in Yard Debris/Organics Co-Collection:

- All food scraps (including meat and bones)
- Coffee filters and tea bags
- All food-soiled paper products
- Paper cups and plates
- Paper towels, placemats, napkins
- Paper bags

Free Tool Kit for Smarter Discards Volunteers

The City of Dubuque is seeking volunteers to authorize the collection of their household's weekly setout data (trash, recycling, and organics weights) in anonymized form for the second phase of the Smarter Discards pilot study. As an incentive, volunteers will receive an "organics recycling tool kit," including a one and a half gallon "kitchen-catcher" container for food scraps, a box of compostable kitchen catcher bags, a sheet of five yard debris decals, and one yard debris bag. This kit will assist in diverting food scraps from the landfill. Volunteers will also be able to access a website/portal that will offer diversion tips, household goal challenges, visualization of personalized data over a period of time, insights into household discard patterns, and analytics that compare discard generation with other households with similar profiles. There is no cost to volunteers to participate in this research. To volunteer, visit www.cityofdubuque.org/smarterdiscards or call 563-690-6111. §

A MESSAGE from the CITY MANAGER

Michael C. Van Milligen

In May, Mayor Roy D. Buol was profiled in a special supplement of the PA Times, a publication of the American Society for Public Administration (ASPA), the largest and most prominent professional association for public administration. The publication was produced to profile outstanding local, city, state, and federal public servants. Of the eight individuals profiled in the publication, Mayor Buol was the only elected official. PA Times editor Melissa Williams said the publication is published to highlight the role of public service in promoting the public good and the delivery of public goods and services and she chose to profile Mayor Buol, "... because I thought his perspective, and focus on sustainability, towards building the Dubuque community, was unique."

The Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University recently named

Smarter Sustainable Dubuque as one of the Top 25 programs in this year's Innovations in American Government Award competition. Smarter Sustainable Dubuque is the research function of the Sustainable Dubuque initiative, which seeks to make Dubuque a community that meets the environmental, economic, and social equity needs of its residents today without reducing the ability of future generations to meet their needs. Smarter Sustainable Dubuque is a unique partnership of the Sustainable Dubuque, IBM Research, and a variety of public and private sector partners designed to give people what they need (reliable information specific to them) so they can do what they want (save money and resources, and improve the quality of life and the economy).

Additionally, the National League of Cities will soon publish a case study focused on Sustainable Dubuque entitled, "The Critical Role of Partnerships in Catalyzing Sustainability." It explains that partnerships are often an untapped, or undertapped, asset in most communities and underscores the fact that we are fortunate that Dubuque is not like "most communities."

On the international level, a future issue of the International City/County Management Association's (ICMA) Public Management magazine will include an article on Dubuque's Smarter Water Pilot Study and how this innovative project served as the catalyst for a similar project in Townsville, Australia, which went on to win their national infrastructure award. Also, ICMA will be featuring the social equity aspects of Sustainable Dubuque in a future case study of the top 10 initiatives in the country.

As Mayor Buol recently said in response to Smarter Sustainable Dubuque being named to the Top 25 Innovations in Government list, Dubuque's efforts related to sustainability have been successful because of support from public and private partners and the real heroes -- the volunteers who participated in the pilot studies. Please consider being one of those heroes by volunteering for the Smarter Discards Pilot Study mentioned on page two of this newsletter. §

New Rates Take Effect July 1

The City's 2014 fiscal year begins July 1, 2013, and with it, new utility user fees and rates go into effect. Utility bills for water, sanitary sewer, and refuse collection received in August will reflect the new rates approved in March as part of the budget process.
