2008 Marks Dubuque's 175th Anniversary

Dubuque, Iowa's oldest city, will celebrate its 175th anniversary in 2008 and a $25,000 grant program has been created to encourage community-wide commemoration of the milestone.

The anniversary marks 175 years since the Black Hawk Purchase Treaty went into effect on June 1, 1833, and opened to pioneers a strip of Native American land 50 miles wide on the western bank of the Mississippi River. This treaty legally permitted miners to "settle" in the area now known as Dubuque.

While the official settlement of the area, later to be known as Dubuque, occurred in 1833, other non-Native Americans were in the area long before that date. Julien Dubuque, the city's namesake, received permission from the Mesquakie tribe to mine lead in the area now known as the Mines of Spain in 1788. He died in 1810, 23 years before white pioneers could legally settle the area. The town of Dubuque was incorporated on April 3, 1837. Iowa was organized as a territory in 1838 and did not become a state until 1846.

During the summer of 2007, the Dubuque City Council accepted applications and appointed an 18-member 175th Anniversary Celebration Coordinating Committee to facilitate broad-based community involvement, coordinate a calendar of events, and develop a funding process and award funds from a $33,000 budget to assist with events. The committee is chaired by Mayor Roy D. Buol. In their initial meetings, the committee's discussions have included:

- A desire to encourage existing festivals and special events to incorporate the city's 175th anniversary into their 2008 events.
- Sponsoring one "Official Event of the 175th Anniversary Celebration."
- The development of a 175th anniversary calendar of "sanctioned" events designed to educate, commemorate, and celebrate the occasion.
- The creation of a special website (www.dubuque175.org) to serve as a central location to publicize events related to the 175th anniversary and be a digital depository for photos, stories, and oral histories.

The committee has developed a special grant program to encourage community organizations and groups to develop a wide variety of projects, contests, events, and displays to commemorate the anniversary. The goal of the program is to generate a wide variety of creative ideas from a diverse group of community organizations which will encourage citizens to become involved in the year-long celebration. Priority funding will be given to projects that have broad community impact and historical significance.

Grant applicants should categorize their project as educational, commemorative, and/or celebratory and could request no less than $200 and no more than $5,000. Eligible activities include, but are not limited to:

- essay contests,
- oral history projects,
- visual arts projects (photography, video, sculpture, paintings, etc.),
- photo and video documentaries,
- special publications,
- historic tours, and
- special concerts.

The deadline for grant applications is December 15, 2007. The committee will review the applications and announce awards in early January 2008. For a grant application, or for more information, visit www.dubuque175.org or call 589-4151. ■

Intercultural Competence Tip: Six Steps to Speaking Up

Sometimes we see or hear something we think is disrespectful or biased, but we are not sure how to respond. Here are six tips, adapted from www.tolerance.org, to help you speak up:

- 1) Ask an open-ended question and engage the person in conversation: "why do you say that?" or "how did you develop that belief?"
- 2) Identify the behavior that you find objectionable, but do not label the person. Pointing out the stereotype rather than calling someone a racist will get you further: "I hear you saying that you think everyone who is African-American does not want to work. Is that really what you think?"

- 3) Appeal to the person's better instincts and higher principles: "I've always felt you were a fair person and it shocks me to hear you say something that sounds so sexist."
- 4) Set limits: "I don't like it when you refer to people you disagree with as 'retards.' Please do not use that language when I'm around."
- 5) Find an ally and be an ally: seek out like-minded people and support one another.
- 6) Be vigilant: change happens slowly, so keep speaking up.

And remember, assume good intent while helping the person see that intent does not always equal impact. ■

CITY MANAGER'S COLUMN

by Michael C. Van Milligen

Historic Federal Building

As part of the City of Dubuque's commitment to its downtown and historic preservation, the City acquired the Historic Federal Building, formerly known as the U.S. Post Office Building, for $1.00 on July 1, 2006.

This magnificent structure is on the National Register of Historic Places and was acquired as "Historic Surplus Property" through the General Services Administration. As a condition of the acquisition, the City agreed to serve as the "custodian" of the structure, maintain its historical significance, and adhere to the National Park Service's guidelines for historic structures. A "Program of Preservation and Utilization" was developed and submitted to the National Park Service. This agreement established the rules under which the building can be renovated. All modifications to the building are governed by the Department of the Interior's Standards for Preservation.

The City's $3.1 million renovation of the building, the goals of which were to maintain the architectural excellence of the building while also making it useful, safe, and accessible, included:

- Conversion and restoration of the second-floor courtroom to the City Council Chambers.
- Conversion of the second-floor jury deliberation rooms to a small meeting room and a remote broadcast studio for CityChannel 8.
- The former Social Security Administration offices on the third floor were remodeled and are now the City's Housing and Community Development Department offices.
- Partial restoration and exterior painting of the building's historically significant steel windows.
- New landscaping, monumental signs (one with LED messages), exterior period lighting, and decorative sidewalks.
- Significant networking and data infrastructure improvements, including a connection to the City's fiber-optic network.
- Other items included: ADA improvements to upgrade accessibility to the building's public spaces, and the addition of a "green roof" to the second floor light well.

The City's investment in this important structure in the heart of our downtown has created a facility of which the community can be proud. I encourage you to attend a City Council meeting or visit our Housing and Community Development Department to see the results of this project.

Milken Institute Ranking

The Dubuque area continues to outperform major U.S. cities. The prestigious Milken Institute recently released its latest list of "Best Performing Cities," with Dubuque outperforming 386 other U.S. cities for job growth. The report shows Dubuque's one-year job growth rate (March 2006 – March 2007) ranked 11th nation-wide. The report separately analyzes the top 200 large and 179 small metros nationwide. Dubuque's 5.26 percent job growth rate moves Dubuque to 8th nationally among small cities and 11th among all U.S. metros.
